The wire frame structure of the spanish balconies inspires this design of overlapping planes.
 This structure plays with views of giants and art museum visitors to perceive the sense of depth, repetition, varying densities, and voids of the space.

During this internship experience, I familized with Vectorworks software and delicate Japanese Model Building Skills and I participated in the Sayamahohanreien Competition in Tokyo.

Also, I assisted Shiseido sponsored Architecture Exhibition and I helped building conceptual models for Toyota Museum .

Then, I participated in the conceptual string model building for 12th International Architecture Exhibition in Venice Biennale 2010. It was recently awarded a Golden Lion for the best National Participation to the Kingdom of Bahrain. Finally, assisted the Kanagawa Institute of Technology Workshop followup designs for later of Ishigami's projects .

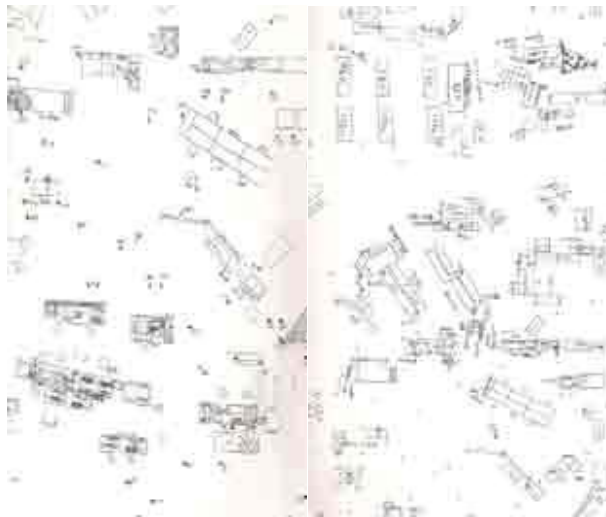

12th INTERNATIONAL ARCHITECTURE BIENNALE in Venice, Italy
Award Golden Lion as best project

Japanese firm junya.ishigami+associates has been awarded the golden lion for best project at the 12th international architecture biennale in venice, italy.

'Architecture as air: study for château la coste' explores a new form of transparency that goes beyond the density and opacity of a building's structural componehts. By blurring the limiting boundaries between space and structure, the project essentially aims to illustrate architecture as air, which transcends the concepts of lightness and weight.
